#7: What are the typical three structural layers in a computer system?

They are: “application program layer”, “operating system layer”, and “(computer) hardware layer” (from the human-user’s side).